b. filing a letter with the Court of no more than three pages showing cause as to why her claim should not be dismissed by setting forth the specific facts and/or law that distinguish her case from the Truitt Order's holding. If Plaintiff wishes to file an amended complaint, she shall so state in her letter and explain what additional facts she would plead to distinguish her case from the reasoning set forth in the Truitt Order. Defendants shall file a reply letter of no more than three pages within thirty days. The Court will, applying the standard of review articulated in the Truitt Order, then determine whether (1) dismissal is either appropriate or inappropriate on the basis of the letters alone or (2) a decision can be made only after additional briefing, in which case the Court will set a briefing schedule.

3. Defendants may submit a proposed Order of dismissal with prejudice for any Plaintiff(s) who does not take action under paragraph 2 within thirty days of being served with a letter under paragraph 1.
